

He Who Would Valiant Be

John Bunyan

♩ = 130

He who would valiant be
Who so be set him round Since, Lord, thou dost defend
'gaint all disas-ter,
with dis-mal sto-ries,
us with they Spir-it,

5

let him in con-stant cy do but them selves con-found-we know we at the end
fol-low-the Mas-ter, his strength the more is,
shall life in her-it.

9

There's no dis-cour-agement, No foes shall stay his might;
Then, fan-cies, flee a-way!
shall make him once re-lent, though he with gi-ants fight,
I'll fear not what men say,

13

his first a-vowed,
he will make good I'll la-bor night
in-tent to be a pil-grim,
his right to be a pil-grim,
and day to be a pil-grim.
